Private Sector Partnership: How Correcting a Market Failure is Transforming the Dairy Sector in Bangladesh

The dairy sector has been under-whelming Bangladeshi farmers for years. The sector is dominated by smallholders who face numerous challenges such as lack of access to quality inputs, high input costs, low productivity, and low market prices. These challenges hinder the growth and development of the dairy sector, leading to poverty and undernutrition.

We work with the larger dairy companies to find ways to innovate solutions that benefit all actors in the value chain. This approach ensures that farmers get better prices, access to quality inputs, and improved technology to increase their productivity. This ultimately helps to improve market prices, which benefits both farmers and consumers.

We provide technical and financial assistance to smallholder farmers to help them access inputs and tools to increase their dairy production. We also work with larger companies to ensure a fair and stable market price for farmers. Together, we are working to create a more sustainable and inclusive dairy sector in Bangladesh.
